In Germany, the Straßenverkehrs-Zulassungs-Ordnung (StVZO) (the regulations governing the use of vehicles on the road) requires that vehicles carry first-aid materials in compliance with DIN 13 164. Our knowledge and striving to provide the highest quality of protection for the user is reflected in our comprehensive range of first-aid boxes for cars shown below.

First-aid boxes for cars DIN 13 164-B

- Contents: Comply with the applicable standard DIN 13 164
- Material: ABS plastic box, heat and deformation resistant, impact resistant
- Colours: The first-aid box is available in many colours, e.g. black, dark blue, grey, red, yellow, light blue, green. The identifying markings are applied using the screen printing process. The coloured ink is petrol and diesel resistant.
- Dimensions: Approx. W 260 x H 170 x D 82 mm
- Weight: Approx. 0.75 kg
- Information: We produce first-aid material in-house and make the plastic first-aid boxes in our own injection moulding shop, which allows us the flexibility to satisfy the customer's specific design requirements with the highest quality of customised colours, imprints and logos. As our box complies with the standard, we can add the reference to DIN 13 164-B.

The DIN 13 164-compliant contents are clearly arranged in a fold-away bag with 6 sections and can be taken out easily.

For protection during delivery the first-aid box is sealed up in a transparent film.

The use-by date of the sterile products is indicated on a sticker. The first-aid material should always be kept up to date and checked at regular intervals, especially in Germany, where providing first-aid is a legal obligation.
