First-aid box/case MARINE

Description of product

The carrying of a first-aid box should not be limited to the car and at work, it should also be an obvious necessity in every motorboat or yacht. You could require first-aid materials for your own safety or to provide first-aid to others anywhere and at anytime when you are on the water. The risk increases disproportionately in rough seas. In case of injury there should always be an adequate supply of first-aid materials on board. The marine kits detailed below are perfect for this situation. They are based on years of experience and the principles given in the DIN standards for first-aid boxes.
